Honorary Fellows, Fellows and Associate Fellows

Honorary Fellows

Persons of acknowledged eminence in Meteorology and allied fields of Sciences and Technology or in their furtherance, may be elected as Honorary Fellows by the General Body of the Indian Meteorological Society (IMS) on proposal from its National Council (NC). Number of Honorary Fellows thus elected shall not exceed 2% of the number of Life Members. In one year not more than 2 Honorary Fellows can be elected.

Fellows

Life Members of IMS who have made outstanding contribution to Meteorology and allied fields of Science and Technology, may be elected as Fellows by the General Body of IMS on proposal from its National Council (NC). Number of Fellows elected shall not exceed 10% of the total number of Life Members. In one year not more than 10 Fellows can be elected.

Associate Fellows

In order to encourage young scientists, the General Body of IMS on proposal from its national Council (NC) may award Associate Fellowships to life members of IMS not more than 45 years of age as on 1st January having made significant contribution in research and operational meteorology or its allied fields of science and technology. In one year not more than 5 Associate Fellowships can be elected.

Submission of Nominations

The nominations for the above Fellowships of IMS should be submitted (By 30 October, 2019) in the enclosed Proforma to:

Secretary,
Indian Meteorological Society
Mausam Bhawan Complex, Lodhi Road
New Delhi 110 003
The nominations for the above categories of IMS Fellowships can be proposed by any Fellow of IMS. A candidate once nominated would be considered for three times in a row. Record of nominated Fellows each year to be maintained and the list of eligible candidates from previous years to be put up to Selection Committee.

Selection Procedure

All nominations received for consideration of fellows will be evaluated by a duly constituted Fellowship Selection Committee by IMS National Council.

The Fellowship Selection Committee will consist of President, IMS and at least two Fellows of IMS with Secretary, IMS as Non Member Convener.

The selection committee so appointed may consider and evaluate proposals based on following three broad criteria.

(i) Contributions made by the candidate to meteorology and its allied fields of science and technology, that include research & development, academic and operational work performed by the candidate in any research, academic or operational organization/institution/agency

(ii) Contribution made by the candidate to the growth of Indian Meteorological Society. The contribution may be in the form of services rendered by the candidate as member, council member of local chapter, member of national council, member of organizing committees of IMS events, members of IMS committees, etc. and

(iii) National contribution of the candidate while playing leadership role or having occupied high managerial or administrative position in government, academic/ research institution, industry or public or private agency.

The National Council and the Fellowship Selection Committee, on their discretion, can consider and propose any other candidate fulfilling above criteria for award of fellowship outside the list of nominations received for consideration.

The recommendation of the fellowship selection committee shall be placed before the National Council of IMS for its consideration and further recommendation and consideration of the GB for final approval.

Presentation of the Fellowships

All fellowships will be presented at the Annual Convention of IMS. However, under exceptional circumstances, at the discretion of President, IMS separate functions can be organised for conferring the fellowships.
